Sirius

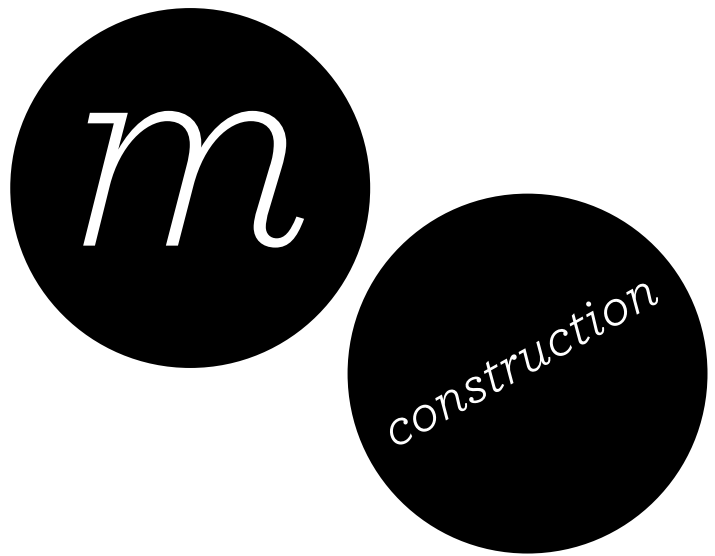

The Sirius collection by Tomas Kysela, local designer from Prague, exclusively made of genuine hand blown Bohemian crystal, offers a wide range of simple to rich decorated chandeliers. One, two or more level models excel in simplicity and cleanness of their design, shape or maintenance but surprise with the variability of their structures and rearrangements.

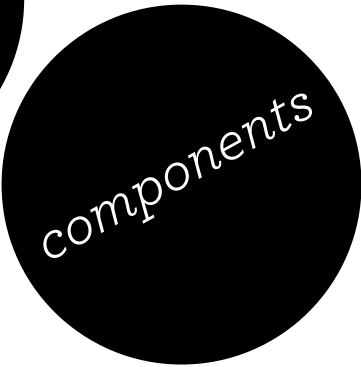

As we try to keep every part of the manufacturing process local and genuine, we start with the material. Raw silicone sand exclusively mined in Bohemian lands is processed according to a original techniques and under a supervision of local glassblowers into a high quality Bohemian crystal.

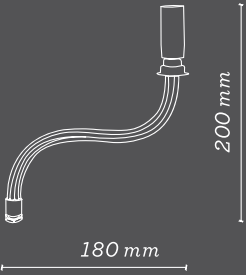

Every crystal part is hand blown into a wooden or metal form or even hot processed without using any kind of form – just tradition and workmanship handed down from generation to generation for hundrets of years. Thus each of our chandelier carries not only the signet of genuine material but even the signature of every individual included.

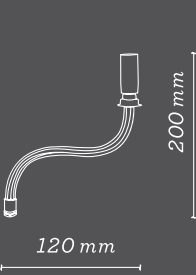

The basic principle of Sirius chandelier collection is simplicity of its construction and possible rearrangement. The open system allows to decide and build the basic shape of the chandelier on the body`s metal baseplate and decorate it afterwards according to customer`s taste. Every model includes one (or more) metal baseplate with holes of appropriate shape and arrangement and appropriate number of chandelier arms of certain size and shape. Arms are to be simply inserted and locked into certain holes, thus the chandelier can be easily arranged and rearranged into desired shape.

All of our Sirius chandelier models and all extra decoartive parts are also available in different colours. The most interesting are natural opal (white) colour which can nicely absorb all the around light and glow the whole chandelier with bright white, and shiny black which on the other hand mirrors all the light on the nobile black backgraund. Besides these, all of our chandeliers are available in other transparent natural colours on request.
